

Emory University Strategic Plan: 2005 – 2015
Reporting Period of September 2005 through October 2010

ACCOMPLISHMENTS AND GOALS: SCHOOLS AND OPERATING UNITS

Emory's schools and major operating units have made significant progress toward accomplishing University-wide goals as well as entity-specific goals. The following summarizes many, but not all significant accomplishments from the past five years.

Candler School of Theology
Jan Love, Dean

Accomplishments: 2005 – 2010

Over the past five years, Candler welcomed Dean Jan Love to the school, revised the Master of Divinity and Master of Theological Studies curricula, completed Phase I of its building project, and made substantial progress in the Capital Campaign. Candler has created and launched an advanced student internship and debt reduction program, Candler Advantage. The school completed external reviews of all program offices and reorganized the administrative structure, including the addition of a new position, Associate Dean of Methodist Studies, one of a number of ways Candler has worked to enhance its relations with The United Methodist Church.

Goals: 2010 – 2015

- (1) Continue to recruit superb scholar-teachers in response to the anticipated generational transition in the faculty
- (2) Attract a larger, excellent student body
- (3) Expand Candler Advantage, a signature program of advanced student internships and debt reduction
- (4) Increase opportunities for students and faculty to engage in international education
- (5) Complete Phase II of the new building
